

Romantic Poems

By Jacque Victor

What is a Valentine?

Just what is a Valentine? What do the poets mean?
When they sing as such of any lass, serving maid or queen.

Are they speaking of the love light
You make shine in my eyes?
Have they reference to the first sweet thought,
each day as I arise?

Do they mean the pain of yearning for on pair of lips to kiss?
Dare they refer so lightly, to one I've learned to miss?

Have they any thought whatever,
When they mummer Valentine,
Of ageless love and adoration?
Cause if they do, YOU'RE MINE.

Below is a valentine poem submitted to Jacque Victor from his wife Francine in 1961

Dear Sir (also Lover and Husband)
I wish to bring the following matter to your attention so that you may act promptly in whatever manner
you deem necessary:

I'm allergic to mink—
I think diamonds stink—
And Cadillacs bore me to tears.

I don't flip for pearls
Or cold English Earls,
And I haven't touched champagne in years!

As for yachts—you can guess
I couldn't care less:
And pheasant's to gamey for me.

Stocks and bonds, cash and fame
Are for some other dame
And not really my cup of tea

What, do you surmise,
Make my temperature rise
And sends chills all over my spine?

A roof overhead
With you in my bed
All mine, Mine, MINE, MINE, MINE!!!!
